Rowan county, which has an important stake in the nation's huge travel business, is one of the regions of the country that should benefit considerably as a result of the aggressive post-war plans of the competing factors in the transportation industry.

Railway Age, reporting a survey of railroad executives in its current issue, says that the prospects are going out vigorously after more business when the war is over. The executives interviewed unanimously declared their intention of "doing everything in their power" to make railroad travel far more attractive to the public.

At perhaps the most alert and foresighted point in their history, the railroads are now blueprinting new, lightweight, streamlined trains, more luxurious cars to increase the fun of travel, high-capacity low-fare cars and generally reduced passenger rates, the survey shows. To top it all off the rail chiefs look forward to a vigorous merchandising and advertising program.

making these plans is good news for all of the areas of the country which share substantially in the prosperity of the travel business, and good news for all Americans who love to travel.

Sure winners in the post-war battle for traffic will be areas like ours where the appeal to the travel instinct is great.

When is dog not a dog? We'd say when he's a soldier. War Dogs are all that the name implies. While there are no commissioned officers in their ranks, not even a canine corporal among them, DOGS FOR DEFENSE is now a recognized institution and household pets are being recruited for service at home and abroad with our armed forces. Dogs are being sought for special military duties with the Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Corps. They serve as sentries and in many other duties.

One reason for the shortage in household help: "I can't work for you any more," a maid informed her mistress, because my husband is working nights and I have to stay at home to keep folks from banging on the door daytimes."

A STATEMENT OF FACTS

FROM THE BROWN HOTEL

DURING the past year and a half, some of this Hotel's best friends have been sometimes puzzled and even annoyed by a situation which we, unhelpfully, have been "up against". Louisville is one of the busiest defense cities in America. The hotel facilities of the entire community have been almost swamped by demands of war and production personnel, and by the constant stream of parents, wives and roadhouse who come to see their soldiers at nearby Army camps.

The Brown Hotel is, as you know, Louisville's largest and most popular hotel. During the past year or so, we have been literally clogged by scores. On vacation mornings, we have had people lined up, two or three deep around the front desk, seeking rooms which we simply did not have available. . . . At breakfast meal-times, we have had the problem of trying to serve three or four times as many

Should Be Meeting Veterans

From where I sit

by Joe Marsh

Been hearing a lot about the Civil Air Patrol lately. A lot of fellows—and girls, too—helping out in the war here at home, flying the army's errands.

Many of 'em fly their own plane and they all pay their own expenses. What they're doing is mighty important, seems to me. Saw one bugging a strong headwind in a storm here a while back. Gave me a thrill to watch that little plane scudding through on its war work.

Real patriots, cooperating like that together, is what wins.

And talking about cooperation, it looks to me like Kentucky brewers are doing a mighty fine job, through the Army and Navy Cooperation Program of the Brewing Industry Foundation. They're seeing to it that every licensed retail beer dealer near a military camp maintains the highest standards of operation. From where I sit, the military authorities have every right to their enthusiasm over the brewer's cooperation program.

Next Year Will Be Different

NEXT year will be different. Not only the weather, and markets, and the needs of the country. Our jobs will be different, too. Because next year we're going to do those jobs differently—and we hope better!

We, whose job is producing goods and services, have been making resolutions like this for years. And we've been keeping them! For in our kind of business, you either keep on finding better ways of doing things, or—you go backward! And if enough people do that, the thing we call progress bogs down.

That's why farmers keep on trying new seed, and fertilizers, and machines, and strains of stock. That's the reason industry carries on research—another name for a constant search for new knowledge and better ways to do things. Because most of us have been doing this for years, America has had the highest standard of living in the world. And it's the reason, too, that American production is doing so much today to bring victory.

After the war, America is going to need more than ever men with the courage and enterprise to invest time, money, and hard work in the search for better things. And if America's producers understand each other, and each other's problems, we'll be able to do these all-important jobs better. General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Can You Picture KENTUCKY without Newspapers?

Every hour of the day headline news or overwhelming interest to every person in Kentucky is being made all over the world. But without our modern communication systems and particularly our newspapers it would be next to impossible to find out what's going on.

Getting even closer to home, we wouldn't know what local boys are back on furlough—what the ball scores are—who's getting married and when—what's happening in the comic-strip world—what events are taking place all over town.

All of us should feel proud of the fine job newspapers are doing to keep Kentucky in touch with the times. It's a strong and free press, serving free people—one of the first things the dictators would suppress if they had the chance. And it would be hard to over-estimate the part played by Kentucky's great dailies and weekly newspapers in furthering the war effort. Nearly a million people buy these papers—far greater numbers read them—the whole State relies upon them for information and inspiration.

For this reason Greyhound depends upon such newspapers as this one to carry its information on bus service to those Kentuckians who travel. Greyhound, in turn, carries many newspapers to rural areas not served by any other transportation system.

As fellow citizens of this State, the Greyhound Lines take much pleasure in helping to make near neighbors and good neighbors of all the communities we serve in Kentucky—linking them to each other and to the rest of the country, as newspapers do.

WE STILL HAVE

MUCH TO BE THANKFUL FOR

Thanksgiving Day finds us grateful for assured Victory, even though the exact date is still uncertain; for ample food, clothing and other necessities in a War-rationed world; for unity and patriotism displayed in so many ways here on the home front.

And let's not forget a special Thanksgiving prayer for our fighting boys overseas, who are giving everything to insure that Freedom shall not perish among Nations.

LET US GIVE THANKS

The season comes again to give reverent thanks for many blessings. In this year of war, somber thoughts must mingle with our thankfulness, but we look toward a brighter future.

Let us be thankful that we live in America.... thankful for success thus far in the war.... for bountiful crops.... for homes.... for good neighbors.... and for many comforts and privileges we alone enjoy.

This is a land of happy homes, and it is the hope of all that there may be peace, and that many families may be happily reunited, before the coming of another Thanksgiving Day.
